INTRODUCTION OF ELECTROHOMOEOPATHY

The necessary steps required to save the lives of the living body in a systematic way is known as Treatment therapies. Electro Homoeopathy is the Fifth Medical Science which is quite harmless, unique, natural and healing process of medical science invented by Dr. Count Ceasre Mattei of Italy in the year of 1865. He was a man of extra ordinary Knowledge of traditional medical science, Homoeopathy, Classic Medicines as well as Naturopathy. He had good knowledge of plants and their remedial uses as he had a good Friend having knowledge of Botany of the time.

Under the influence of his friend Paulocosta, he started studying various branches of medicine. He studied Allopathy, Homoeopathy; but since he was not satisfied. Then he studied the work of the great scientist, Herbalist and philosopher of the 16th century Paracelsus (1493-1541) Of Switzerland was greatly impressed were:

1. Law of presence of Electricity in Vegetable kingdom.
2. Law of Similarity.
3. Law of Polarity.

ELECTRO: - Bio-energy / Electrode energy

HOMOEEO: - Homoeostasis / Similar condition

PATHY : - Mode of treatment or science

According to Dr.Mattei, "ODD Force" is the chief controller of the body which is derived from the original source of Energy called the 'Nameless Being' or the 'Supreme Creator' of this creation. This energy is spread to different creatures of this creation and till the energy is in functioning order they live and when that energy is withdrawn death occurs. Odd force acts on every creature by Sun, moon, stars, planets, gravitation, wind, water etc; but among of all, Plant kingdoms are the only species that can store energy by the Photosynthesis process with the help of water, light and other natural substances. When the man or any animal falls ill, he gets necessary energy in the form of medicine from the plants and other vegetations. The Founder of Electro Homoeopathy Dr C. C. Mattei learnt this Secret and made all medicines from Spagyric Essences (in E.H. the main extracted essence of the herbals are known as the Spagyric Essence) by a special Cohobation Method.

LIFE HISTORY OF COUNT CESARE MATTEI & Spread of E.H.

Cesare Mattei was born in Bologna on 11th January 1809, the son of Teresa Montignani and Luigi Mattei. His parents owned land and other property in Bologna, Budrio and Comacchio.

In 1823 the Mattei family purchased the Magnavacca castle & surrounding lands from the Lambertini family (the family of Pope Benedict XIV). In 1837, Cesare Mattei was one of the founders of the Bologna Saving Bank. In 1847, in order to help the pope contain Austrian arrogance, the brothers Cesare & Giuseppe Mattei donated all their properties on the canal to Pio IX, including Magnavacca castle. On 2nd August of the same year, as a mark of his gratitude, the pope conferred the title of COUNT on them. After this, Cesare Mattei was appointed member of the Council of recruitment for the Bologna Civil Guard with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and Chief of Staff, a position he abandoned when on 18th May 1848 he was elected Member of Parliament in Rome. In this period his brother Giuseppe married the countess Carolina Brunetti, whose family owned lands in the Savignano area near Riola. Count Cesare Mattei, on a visit to the property acquired by his brother, appreciated the beauty of the area, and where the castle had stood found the ideal place to build his fantastic home & create a little kingdom of his own. This is the Rocchetta Mattei, the name Count Cesare Mattei gave to it, whose brainchild it was, and who had it constructed.

The Rocchetta is very well known in the Bologna area, and it was once famed throughout Europe, indeed the world, among the acolytes of Electro-homeopathy. This is a branch of medical science, or to be more precise, a therapeutic system, studied and practiced with great enthusiasm and profit by Count Cesare Mattei.

In 1850 Count Mattei brought from the Donati family the lands where the ancient castle of Savignano had once stood, and on November 5th of that year laid the first stone of the new castle that would take the name of Rocchetta. By 1859, the Rocchetta was inhabitable and the count settled down to live there, although work on the place continued until 1875. The Count hardly ever left his castle, devoting himself to the study of medicine. It was from this moment of 1859 that his study of the new medicine began.

The real or pretended miracles of homeopathy had then received a lot of publicity. Its celebrated founder, Dr. Samuele Hahnemann, had died only a few years previously in Paris. There were homeopathic chemists in many Italian cities. Count Cesare Mattei became enthusiastic about this new phenomenon and immersed himself in its study. Exploring beyond the theories of Hahnemann (the inventor of Homeopathy), he developed a new medical science he called "Electrohomoepathy" (Elettromeopatia), based on the matching of homeopathic granules, subdivided into:

- Anti-lymphatics (for the lymph)
- Anti-angioitics (for the blood)
- Anti-scrofulosis (for the lighter disorders of the lymph)
- Anti-Cancer (for the more serious disorders of the lymph and the blood.)

Special types (for specific organs or tissues):-

With 5 electric liquids to re-establish the equilibrium between the two electricities of the body and bring the painful part back to a neutral state.

- RED Electricity (++)
- BLUE Electricity (+)
- WHITE Electricity (Neutral)
- YELLOW Electricity (-)
- GREEN Electricity (- -)

For his preparations, Mattei used various medicinal herbs, but in his letters he insisted that he could have obtained the same results using any kind of essence, because the type of medicinal herb was not as important as his method of preparation, which he kept a jealously guarded secret.

It is said that Mattei, in homage to the homeopathic principles of tiny doses, had explained to the uninitiated that one of his granules could be dissolved even in a really big container of water without losing its healing ability.

Electro-homeopathy is the treatment strengthened by electrical energy, that Count Mattei provided in the first instance in liquid state and later on in the form of tiny white granules. This method attracted the sick and infirm from every corner of the world.

C.C. Mattei opened offices, laboratories, and healing centers in Bologna and Rome. Later he withdrew to the castle where he preached and practiced the new science up until his death. His specialty was the cure of cancer. He focused his attentions particularly on this terrible disease and it was in this field that he achieved his finest success. His preparations contained radioactive substances from which an especially effective energy was released for the healing of this terrible affliction. The whole world had recourse to him, and not just a coterie of imbeciles. Every year he sent out around a million glass phials containing the mysterious granules, as well as the phial of electric liquids. At Riola station, from every continent, the sick were filled with desire to meet the thaumaturge who would save their lives and they were almost always important people. Mattei's cures were tried out on lepers in India, and Father Augusto Muller, who directed a charitable asylum for these poor people at Mangalore, wrote to a Florence scientific journal that he had obtained excellent results. Lady Paget, the wife of the English ambassador in Vienna, having been cured by the Mattei granules, paid a visit to the Rocchetta and then wrote an account in the National Review. A sanatorium was opened in London exclusively for Mattei's treatment. It was given the name of Mattei Home, and a Miss Simson, a charitable English Lady, wished to endow it with the sum of a thousand pounds. Gifts and letters of gratitude arrived for Mattei from the Russian Court.

In 1881, though faced with the hostility of official medical opinion, Mattei began the mass production of Electro-homeopathic remedies, and started exporting them. The Count treated poor people for free, and was actively charitable towards the poor who turned to him for help. From 1884, the deposits increased considerably, new ones being opened in Belgium, in the United States, in Haiti and China. This happened despite the fierce campaign against Electro-homeopathy carried out by Allopathic medicine.

Count Cesare Mattei may have alluding to the prohibition in the law on public health of 1988 of medical cures and the sale of medicine, without abiding by certain rules. The Electro-homeopathic science had been the Count's passion. It had been his life. He owed his fame to it entirely, as well as his financial success which had allowed him to build the castle and create a feudal reality even in the nineteenth century.

On 3rd April 1896, Count Cesare Mattei died, at the age of 87, tormented by the knowledge that he had failed to find a trustworthy person to whom he could pass on the secrets of the preparation of his Electro-homeopathic remedies. In his will he left nothing to his adopted son. According to the notes the farmer Zeffirino Taruffi made inside the cover of his ledger, the coffin was taken into Savignano Church 'with the honours of the music of Porretta', and around two thousand people were present. A mass was celebrated on 14th April, with 60 priests, and 6000 people, perhaps more, crowded into the space around the church. He was an original mixture of feudal lord thaumaturge, giver of charity, and artist.

In 1885, EH comes to India and still practicing in near every state of India.

Electro-homeopathy is still practiced in many corners of the globe, e.g. England, the U.S.A., Germany, Canada and some Asian states, especially India, where hundreds of thousands of doctors continue to treat their patients with Electro-homeopathic medicine produced according to a formula taken to India.

In short, all Electrohomeopathic remedies are prepared from 114 Nonpoisonous & Vegetable plants. There are total 60 no. of medicines in EH, from which 38 are originals and 22 are complex remedies. These medicines have a quick effect on the cell & tissues of the living body, and have no side effects or aggravations.

It's safe for all and can be use by all age group and sex.

It has no diet restrictions and can be use with other remedies.

It expels the organism out from the body, Purifies Blood & Lymph of the body. Thus cures the disease from its root.

According to Dr.Mattei, the E.H. medicines act on the Blood and Lymph purifies them, provides nutrition. Therefore it is clear that Electrohomeopathic system of treatment is the most effective and up-to-dated, quite harmless having no side effect, aggravation and suitable for all age and sex. It cures the disease as well as the cause of the disease more effectively as like the flow of electricity.

It is fact that many states including Tamilnadu have implemented clinical establishment Act. 2010. All states are giving honour and weight age to the order of Central Govt. dated 14/02/2011 with regard to education and practice of Electro Homoeopathy. On the suggestion and mutual consultation of Ministry of Health & Family Welfare Govt. of India. Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has also passed order on 22/01/2015 that there is no ban on medical practice of Electro Homoeopathy.

Ministry of Health & Family Welfare Govt. of India has already clarified on 14/02/2011 that Electro Homoeopathy is not applicable under clinical establishment (Registration & Regulation) Act. 2010 for registration to the clinics of the practitioners of it but there is no practicing electro homoeopathy or imparting education as per central Govt. order V.25011/276/2009-HR Dated 05/05/2010.

Madras High Court has also passed an order on 28/11/2016 that as per Ministry of Health & Family Welfare Govt. of India order No. V.25011/276/2009-HR Dated 05/05/2010. The petitioner can rightfully practice Electro Homoeopathy Medicine in every state in India without hindrance. Hence, there is no need to take permission from local health authorities or joint director of health of the district of Tamilnadu. Government has already accepted this order as this order remains unchallenged by the state Govt. in Hon'ble Supreme court of India. Therefore, the state Govt. should also give honour of it.

Electro Homoeopathy legal and scientific analysis committee setup by Rajasthan Govt. consist of the experts of botanists, pharmacologists, clinical research, electro homoeopathy expert, of other medical system viz. senior scientist-17, CMO-40, legal expert-5 and other expert including vice chancellors of the universities of Rajasthan Govt.-16. On the basis of the evidences and documents received and examined, the committee has a clear judgment that electro homoeopathy is a simple, economical, accessible and secure therapeutic approach, it must be recognized in the state. Taking into consideration the utility and merits of electro homoeopathy, the committee expresses its though conviction and strongly recommends the state Government to draft essential law and initiate the statutory administrative process to grant due recognition to electro homoeopathy in the state. Ultimately on 09/03/2018 the Assembly of Rajasthan Govt. has passed Electro Homoeopathy System of Medicine Bill No. 13 of 2018 recognizing the system in Rajasthan State. Hon'ble Govt. of Rajasthan state has already signed on the Bill on 10th October, 2018. Therefore, Electro Homoeopathy system of medicine is a recognized system in a state like Rajasthan. Recently, on May 2025, Govt. of Rajasthan sanctioned Rs.5,00,00,000/- (Five Crore Rupees) for the development of Electrohomeopathy & for making Electrohomeopathic Board in the state.
